P.G. School Board Hears Citizens', Officials' Views on SHL School

by Mary Moien

On January 17, more than 100 persons attended a public hearing at Eleanor Roosevelt High School related to redevelopment of Springhill Lake (SHL) and specifically the location/relocation of the current Springhill Lake Elementary School. The hearing was called in response to the contents of a letter that the Prince George's County Board of Education sent to the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. In that letter, the Board of Education stated its intent to "transfer interest in the existing School Board property to AIMCO," the developer. The letter grew out of a January 9 meeting between the Board of Education and Apartment Investment and Management Company (AIMCO), a meeting where no other participants were allowed to testify. AIMCO sought this statement from the Board of Education to further an approval of a conceptual site plan for the SHL redevelopment. Other interested parties were concerned that they had not been able to participate in that meeting and that their concerns were not being heard. This meeting was then set up to hear from the public.

In an opening statement, the board stated that the letter they provided on AIMCO's behalf indicated that no final decision had been made and that the agreement in the letter was not binding. The statement also indicated that more input was being sought and that a review of all schools in the county might be appropriate.

Five elected officials were called upon first – County Councilmember Tom Dernoga, Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis, Berwyn Heights Mayor Sheye Calvo, Berwyn Heights Councilmember Patricia Dennison and an unexpected participant, State Senator Paul Pinsky.

Dernoga stated that he heard the board state that a proposed Greenbelt area taskforce should be expanded to look at schools county wide. He opposes expanding the taskforce at the present time. Developers, AIMCO and others, should be required to participate in a planned taskforce to look at school needs in Greenbelt West. Dernoga commented that there are not many spaces inside the Beltway where a school can be placed.

Calvo stated that "land is the issue." If the board releases the SHL Elementary School property, the board must buy additional property for new schools. He indicated that the letter that the board provided to AIMCO allows the schools issues to be negotiated at the detailed site plan level and not at this first stage. Due to this shift, Calvo stated that he is going to propose that the Berwyn Heights Council take a stand against the entire AIMCO project.

Davis stated that there appears to be confusion about Greenbelt's position on the school situation. She pointed to a December 21 letter to the county planning board which states that AIMCO had "agreed to accept a City condition of approval that will resolve the school site and capacity prior to the approval of the DSP (detailed site plan)." Davis read from a prepared letter, "The City believes the most appropriate position to take at this time is to approve the proposed 5,800 dwelling units conditioned upon the resolution of the Greenbelt West school adequacy issue to the satisfaction of both the Board of Education and the City."

Dennison commented that in the past AIMCO had mentioned building a new school on the school bus lot on Greenbelt Road adjacent to Greenbelt Middle School but that they have not mentioned that lately. (At a recent meeting Superintendent of Schools John Deasy commented that he was not in favor of grouping schools together on the plot of land.) She told the board that they had acted prematurely in signing the letter.

Pinsky stated that "corporate neighbors must pay their fair share." He further stated that builders must be held accountable for infrastructure. He chided the board for undervaluing the worth of the current property (reported as $20 million) and stated that the state may not want to provide funding if it feels the county is "giving away" its school properties. The county must "stay tough on this."

Johnson Urged the School Board to Send Its Letter

by James Giese

Prince George's County Executive Jack Johnson urged the Prince George's Board of Education to give "immediate attention" to sending to the Prince George's County Planning Board a "letter of its intent for Springhill Lake Elementary" in a December 13 letter, shortly after the school board assumed office on December 4. Johnson's urging apparently spurred the entire school board to meet with Apartment Investment and Management Company (AIMCO) on January 9, two days before the planning board was to consider AIMCO's Preliminary Plan of Subdivision. The planning board had set as a precondition to its consideration of a preliminary plan that AIMCO provide documentation from the school system of its transfer or intent to transfer interest in the existing school board property to AIMCO. After meeting with AIMCO and in executive session, the school board authorized such a letter of intent to be sent to the planning board.

In his letter Johnson noted that some of the school board members were already aware that the planning board was to consider the AIMCO plan and needed such a letter, but did not explain how the members might have become aware of this need.

Johnson argued that "approval at this point in the process will in no way jeopardize the prerogative of the Board of Education to reject a new elementary school building funded by AIMCO." If the board should decide to maintain the school at its current site, AIMCO will still be required to pay school impact fees for any new units that it might build.

Johnson also said that he remained confident that after approval of the preliminary plan, all the parties involved, including the City of Greenbelt, could resolve any outstanding concerns. In the meantime, he said, there were safeguards in place to ensure the redevelopment project will not proceed beyond its existing size without everyone's collective approval.

The letter also notes the county's need to make significant future investment to insure that school facilities are "first rate and conducive to education." AIMCO's contribution of $20 million for a brand new school will both relieve pressure on the school budget and replace this facility years ahead of schedule.

Johnson concludes by expressing the hope that the school board will join him so that county residents can see progress towards the county's twin goals of economic development and quality education.

In a December 23 story by Nelson Hernandez in The Washington Post about the letter Johnson wrote, Hernandez reports that AIMCO lobbyist Michael E. Arrington is the son of Johnson's former campaign chairman and that he and Andre Gingles, a lawyer for AIMCO, contributed a combined $10,000 to Johnson's campaign.

Johnson is quoted in the article as saying, "I don't make a decision based on a lobbyist or a friend or anyone else. That's insulting."

Collective Bargaining, Clean Cars Lead Council Agenda

by Carol Griffith

The regular Greenbelt City Council meeting of January 22 began with a moment of silence to honor two individuals – Corporal Luis Gonzalez of the Greenbelt Police Department and Janet S. Brown – before proceeding with the agenda. All members of council were present. Mayor Judith Davis recognized that this is "a sad time" for the police department in light of the recent death of Cpl. Gonzalez.

Several police officers were present at the meeting in regard to council action concerning an amendment to Chapter 13 of the Greenbelt City Code in adding a new section (Article VIII), entitled "Labor Code." The Labor Code has resulted from the referendum question on the November 2005 ballot, which permitted certain police officers to organize and bargain collectively.

The resulting Labor Code is the product of several months of negotiations between the city and the Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 32. Although the group of police officers present were invited to come forward, there was no discussion and the ordinance was adopted. City Manager Michael McLaughlin stated that the city and the FOP are "trading dates for negotiations" for the first contract, which will commence on July 1.

Transportation Grant

Later in the meeting Councilmember Konrad Herling announced that the Metropolitan Washington Council of Government's Transportation Planning Board is offering five pilot technical assistance grants. He proposed that the city apply for one of these in order to support a charette on transportation issues.

Herling and McLaughlin had presented council with a draft proposal in which the grant money would be used to evaluate

by Barbara Hopkins

Following a long tradition, at its first meeting of the year on January 8 the Greenbelt City Council reviewed appointments of councilmembers as liaison to city advisory groups and organizations. Council also announced appointments of councilmembers to various policy boards and subcommittees of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments (COG), to which Greenbelt belongs. Prior to this listing of council's various duties and activities, a citizen proposed under Petitions and Requests that councilmembers should receive a pay raise.

Pay Raise

Greenbelt resident Germaine Timmermans addressed council regarding the long span of time since councilmembers had received a pay raise. Her research showed that councilmembers had received a raise about every four years in the past but it has been 14 years since the last increase in their salary. She noted that councilmembers would be spending even more time serving the city in the near future due to pending real estate developments in the western part of the city and she suggested that their pay be increased from $6,000 to $20,000 for the mayor and from $5,000 to $10,000 for the rest of council.

Councilmembers thanked her for the suggestion and for showing appreciation for their efforts on behalf of the city this way. Mayor Judith Davis told Timmermans that a council could not vote itself a raise but during an election year looked at raising the salaries for the incoming council during budget discussions. For some time, Davis said, budget restraints have caused council

EditorialThe Board of Education and the Letter

The newly elected nonpartisan Prince George's County Board of Education got off to a bad start when it jumped to the tune of the county executive and a developer on January 9 by hastily agreeing to issue a letter of intent to transfer the Springhill Lake Elementary School to the developer, AIMCO. This action was taken although no understanding has been reached as to compensation and concerns raised by the school board staff and without hearing from concerned citizens. Those who approved issuance of the letter appeared to have forgotten their campaign promises to put the children and education first and to listen to the citizens of the county. Holding a public hearing after reaching a decision is not the way to listen to citizens.

While we recognize AIMCO's interest in proceeding with their proposal to tear down the existing Springhill Lake Apartment project and replace it with a new development of almost twice as many dwelling units, we do not believe the school board should jump through AIMCO's hoop. To us, the newly formed board has many issues to deal with right now of great importance to the future of education and the future of the county. Clearly the school transfer proposal is not of top priority for the school system nor has it been adequately considered by the board and staff. Nor have the terms of transfer been negotiated. It was premature for the board to take such an action.

Although the letter contained the magic words sought by the developer, "the BOE is expressing its intent to transfer interest in the existing school board property (Parcel 20) to the applicant, AIMCO," to the school board's credit the letter also is full of caveats making it clear that the board is not yet prepared to agree to such a transfer. The letter states that several issues need to be addressed and that these must be fully analyzed and resolved. The letter also states that the board "reserves its right to withdraw its intent" and that the letter does not "constitute a binding agreement." We don't know how the Prince George's County Planning Board or the political powers supporting the AIMCO proposal will treat this letter but to us it seems a letter of questionable value.

We also note that this is a newly elected Board of Education with none of its members having previously served or bringing to it institutional memory. We expect that it will take a while for its membership to come together and work successfully to better the interests of educating the county's children. Certainly those elected bring to the board good credentials and experience. We hope that the end result of this troubling and conflicted affair will become a positive learning experience for the members of the board.

Letters to the EditorConsensusBy Invitation Only?

I am responding to the January 18 article "Mayor and Roberts Spar Over Meeting Comments" where "Davis had noted that at a charrette held on the redevelopment of Springhill Lake there had been a consensus that the elementary school should be moved."

The charrette that Mayor Davis refers to was by invitation only. The charrette was sponsored by AIMCO, the developer seeking to demolish the school. This meeting was a highly scripted event, not intended to entertain dissent.

In contrast to the charrette, the January 9, 2006, Greenbelt City Council meeting, open to the public, showed strong community support for keeping the elementary school in the center of the development.

I am disappointed that Mayor Davis stands by the charrette "consensus" when she warned AIMCO about excluding Greenbelt residents: "... the residents have many questions, and problems could be unnecessarily created if they are not included at an appropriate point in the process." (Nov. 19, 2003, worksession minutes online)

Joan Falcão

... and Liberty for All

I am responding to the letter writer who is troubled by "overrepresentation of homeless and mentally disturbed individuals" and proposes they be "disallowed" from Roosevelt Center and placed in a "recovery center" in the old post office. He raises issues that are important for our community to address.

Thanks, Greenbelt!

We placed a small ad in last week's paper for a benefit dance for my son Will, which was held last Friday evening. Apparently, many of you saw it or heard about it or read the accompanying article by the staff (thank you for that extra push News Review) and showed up to help our cause. We collected a little more than $3,800 in cash and checks (some for a lot more than the price of admission!). In addition, Tommy Bryant, Trish Newbern, Daryl Miller, Tom Elishway and Jackie Elishway sold food and donated proceeds and their tips from working the bar, which they also worked for free, for an additional $380. Add to that $255 from the raffle and more checks we received in the mail and at our church and the total for this week was $5,400. If you couldn't come, we appreciate your thoughts and encouragement as well.

As my son said at the dance, "Thank You" cannot begin to express the profound and lasting gratitude that I feel toward all of you. Special thanks to the Legion membership and Kathy Linkenhoker for allowing us the use of the hall and to Tommy and all of the crew who helped the night of the dance. I am also grateful to Paula Clinedinst and my daughters and sons-in-law and my wife Barbara for handling the cash, door prizes and the raffle. Very special thanks to John "Rock" McBride, Donald Nickolson, Richard "Floyd" Patterson of the Good Guys and Richard "Dickie" Tipton (all Greenbelt boys) and Ray New for donating their immense talent and performing for free with me. Thanks also to Donald's son David and his friend Jessie for their own musical contribution.

Greenbelt continues to be a special place. I tell people all the time that I was fortunate to have lived my childhood in such a wonderful storybook village, which is what Greenbelt was in those days. When I see those little dishes by the cash register of some merchants for "give-a-penny, take-a-penny," I always think of Greenbelt. Give a little if you have some to spare and take a little if you need it. That's pretty much how I grew up. This time I took . . . a lot. I will continue to give whenever and wherever I can for all of you. After all, it's the Greenbelt way you know, Greenbelt is Great!

Plans to Celebrate King Holiday Here

Should Greenbelt have its own celebration of the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.? Something inspiring? Some service projects? Activities to bring all parts of our community together? You are invited to share your thoughts with others next Tuesday, February 6 at 7:30 p.m. We will be in the multi-purpose room (#201) in the Greenbelt Community Center.

Hope to see you there.

"Little Shop of Horrors" At ERHS February 8-10

by Miki Haber

The musical "Little Shop of Horrors" is an adaptation of the 1960 movie of the same title, originally written by Roger Corman. Writer Howard Ashman and composer Alan Menken changed the drama into a musical in 1982. The play is centered around a run-down flower shop on Skid Row, where everyone is poor and depressed. The main character, Seymour Krelborn, who works at the flower shop, discovers a new, strange breed of flytrap and names it after his secret love, his fellow worker, Audrey. This plant, "Audrey Two," is very sickly until Seymour discovers what it needs to survive and grow – blood.

After growing big and strong, the Audrey Two begins to speak and to threaten Seymour. Audrey Two convinces Seymour that the only way he will get Audrey to fall in love with him is to continue to feed the plant. Eventually things get out of hand and Seymour is left with a dilemma that causes him to lose what he loves most.

Greenbelters Cody Sanders (Audrey Two puppet master), Dina Goldberg-Strassler (Mrs. Luce), Joel Mason-Gaines (assistant technical director) and Michaela Haber (co-assistant director) are all part of the show. Some familiar faces to the Roosevelt stage are Joel Sparks, who plays Seymour and Emma Krupnick, who plays one of the Ronettes – the six girls who act as pseudo-narrators of the story. Emily Moore (Audrey), Samantha Needle (Crystal), Emily Gherels (Marvellette), Charlie Irving (Shirrelle), Chris Roy (Skip Snip), Rodney Davis (Mr. Bernstein) and David Casto (Martin) have also all acted on the Roosevelt stage previously.

Drama teacher Sara Nelson is directing the show, musical direction is by social studies teacher Kenneth Bernstein and choreography is by Samantha Fitschen. The orchestra pit director is Dr. L. Richmond Sparks. The show opens on Thursday, February 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) auditorium and runs through Saturday, February 10. There is a fee. The play is not recommended for young children.

Explore Development Of the American Flag

On Friday, February 9 at 1 p.m. Explorations Unlimited will host a presentation by Ronald Bowers, the immediate past president of the Maryland Federation of Chapters of the National Active and Retired Federal Employees Association (NARFE). Bowers began collecting his array of miniature flags after reading a completely erroneous dissenting opinion in one of the cases involving flag burning. The result is a display of flags that shows the development of the American flag before and during the Revolutionary War and the 27 changes in the flag since its formal adoption. The display includes an explanatory card for each flag. The lecture, which Bowers has given many times to various groups, will use the display of the actual flags to cover some of the myths and facts in the development of the flag and of the nation.

Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Community Center. This presentation will be held in the Senior Classroom, Room 114. Everyone is welcome to attend. Call 301-397-2208 for more information.

Very Successful Benefit Dance

Will Ransom, former Greenbelter, was humbled and surprised at the fabulous turnout to the benefit dance held in his honor Friday night at the American Legion. With more than 150 people in attendance, more than $5,000 was raised to help with the cost of the kidney and pancreas transplants Will needs.

Greenbelt's own "Good Guys" provided the music. Singer and keyboard player Rick Ransom is Will's father. Door prizes and a 50/50 drawing were also part of the fundraiser.

Not only was Will and his extended family impressed with the turnout but also the guests and volunteers were moved by the generous spirit of the attendees. Many guests contributed money in addition to the $10 that was requested at the door. In addition, the bartenders donated their tips to the transplant fund.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor.

Remember to count your blessings. For more information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email info@searchislam.org or visit www.searchislam.org.

Many individuals and group members had also signed up to speak. Ann Harris Davidson, chair, Berwyn Heights Education Advisory Committee, called the board's decision "disappointing" and asked what could be done at this point. The situation must be rectified as there is no other available land in the area if the SHL parcel is gone. Greenbelter Doug Love approached the microphone with two hats. He thanked the board for listening to the citizens. He showed a hat with Venetian blinds which he said the board was wearing as "corporate blinds." The board should be wearing a scholar's cap instead.

David Lange, volunteer coordinator for Greenbelt Elementary School, urged the board to see beyond AIMCO. He pointed out that there are currently two additional developments in Greenbelt West – Greenbelt Station and Greenbelt Crossing. All of these developments will have children who will need to be schooled. The city also wants to ensure sidewalks, trees, parks and other amenities that are the signs of a stable community. He urged the board to help Greenbelt remain a valued community.

Amy Hansen, PTA president at Greenbelt Elementary School, asked the board to have PTA members and principals involved in meetings on the school issues. She commented that no one has been talking to the principals whose students and schools are involved in the redevelopment area. She read from a prepared statement: "We have a new superintendent and a new school board. There is hope that comes from new beginnings but the school board's appearance of being willing to give away assets is a major step backward. You were elected because you promised to put the kids first. Please live up to that promise."

Councilmember Rodney Roberts spoke as an individual. First he apologized to the board for interrupting the board meeting with AIMCO. He felt that AIMCO had presented misleading information and that an elected official should have been able to make a point of indicating disagreement at that meeting.

PTA member and former city councilmember Alan Turnbull commented that many developers view a well-placed school as a draw. Children will be "affected for a generation" by the decisions made now. "This is the moment to use some leverage."

Greenbelter Jeff Morisette commented that the board had waited five days to share the letter to the planning board and wondered why the school board reached its decision "behind closed doors." He stated that the developer is not the enemy, all parties should be working together. Morisette and several other parents spoke about issues involving Greenbelt Middle School and wondering if that school will ever be replaced. Where will those children go? Will it become overcrowded as more students move into Greenbelt West?

As this meeting was strictly for hearing from the public, there were no comments made by the board before the hearing was concluded.

(Both the letter from the Board of Education to the Prince George's County Planning Board and the letter from County Executive Jack Johnson to the Board of Education appear on this page.)

The Honorable Owen Johnson
Chairman
Prince George's County Board Of Education
Members of the Prince George's County Board of Education

Dear Chairman Johnson and Members of the Board:

Congratulations once again on your election and assumption of your responsibilities on December 4. I enjoyed our recent reception wherein we discussed the vision for our school system for the years to come. We have much work to do together, and I am looking forward to your leadership on the many important issues we will confront together.

One issue that requires your immediate attention is the proposed redevelopment of the Springhill Lake Apartments (SHL) in Greenbelt, MD. The developer, Apartment Investment and Management Company (AIMCO) has worked since 2002 with elected officials and the community to design an entirely new planned community inside the Beltway and close to the Greenbelt Metro station. The current plan includes demolition of Springhill Lake Elementary School with AIMCO building an entirely new school on the site of Greenbelt Middle School. In negotiations with the previous Board and Administration, AIMCO agreed to pay $20 million to build a new school to BOE specifications.

As some of you are already aware, the County Planning Board is scheduled to consider the Preliminary Plan of Subdivision for SHL on January 11, 2007. A condition of the conceptual site plan requires that the BOE send a letter of its intent for Springhill Lake Elementary. Given that a new Board has just been elected, I'm sure you have not had time to consider the many ramifications of this plan. However, I am requesting that you send a letter to the Planning Board that allows the plan to move forward while at the same time preserving all BOE options for future deliberations.

In light of the opportunity to leverage significant private financial resources for new school construction, as well as the broader economic development and crime reduction impacts we can reasonably expect from this redevelopment project, it is essential to move the Preliminary Plan forward immediately. Furthermore, AIMCO has already agreed to a City of Greenbelt condition to participate in a Greenbelt West School Plan with the BOE and neighboring developers to determine future school needs. The condition requires review of school impact before AIMCO can build more than its existing number of units.

Support for the Preliminary Plan approval at this point in the process will in no way jeopardize the prerogative of the Board of Education should you at a later time choose to reject a new elementary school building funded by AIMCO. Should you instead choose to maintain the current school at the current site, AIMCO will still be required to pay school impact fees under the established formula for any new units it might still wish to construct.

I remain confident that after approval of the Preliminary Plan, AIMCO, the Prince George's County Board of Education, the City of Greenbelt and the Prince George's County Council, as well as my office, can resolve any outstanding concerns prior to approval of the Detailed Site Plan necessary prior to actual construction. In the meantime, we have safeguards in place to ensure that the redevelopment project will not proceed beyond its existing size without our collective approval.

As is obvious to all of us, we need to make even greater infrastructure investments than we have in years past. Although we have accelerated our public school construction and rehabilitation funding in recent years, we still must make significant future investment to ensure that our faculties are first rate and conducive to education. The AIMCO commitment to provide $20 million for the construction of a brand new elementary school will both relieve some pressure on the overall school budget, and will also ensure the necessary replacement of this facility years ahead of schedule.

For these reasons, I hope you will join with me in supporting this exciting redevelopment project through its next phase of the Preliminary Plan approval, so that our county residents can see progress toward its twin goals of economic development and quality education.

Thank you for your consideration, and best wishes with your new responsibilities and challenges. I look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,
Jack Johnson
County Executive

Fern Piret, Director
Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission
County Administration Building, 4th Floor
Upper Marlboro, Maryland 20772

Re: Springhill Lake Preliminary Plan 4-05082

Dear Ms. Piret:

As you are aware, the District council approved a Conceptual Site Plan ("CSP") SP-05001-C, which involved the redevelopment of the Springhill Lake community. That approval contemplates Parcel 20, the current site of Springhill Lake Elementary, being conveyed to the Applicant and redeveloped as part of the new project's recreational amenity and infrastructure. A new Springhill Lake Elementary was proposed to be constructed (funded by the Applicant), on property owned by the Prince George's County Board of Education. Inasmuch as this proposal had not been fully developed or analyzed, the CSP approval contained Condition 7 which expresses:

Prior to the approval of the preliminary plan of subdivision, the applicant shall provide documentation from the Prince George's County Public Schools of their transfer or intent to transfer interest in the existing School Board property to the applicant.

This past November, the new Board of Education ("BOE") was elected into office. On January 9, 2007, the BOE's Capital Improvement Program Committee (CIP) received a presentation from Aimco, developer of the Springhill Lake Community and the applicant in the approved CSP and pending Preliminary Plan noted above. All members of the Board attended the Committee meeting. Subsequent to the presentation and discussion, the BOE voted to send this letter, wherein the BOE is expressing its intent to transfer interest in the existing School Board property (Parcel 20) to the applicant, Aimco.

The BOE has several issues which need to be fully addressed, some of which were expressed to Aimco by BOE members and staff subsequent to the Aimco presentation. These issues will need to be fully analyzed and resolved to the satisfaction of the Administration and Board prior to any final decision by the Board on the conveyance of Parcel 20. To that end, the BOE specifically reserves its right to withdraw its intent to convey Parcel 20 at any future date, and it has made Aimco aware of this reservation. Moreover, this letter of intent does not constitute any binding agreement between the Board and Aimco. The Board intends to negotiate with Aimco, receive appropriate input from all interested parties on outstanding issues and receive other information that will allow the BOE to, ultimately, make a decision that is in the best interest of the children, parents and community.

Thank you for this opportunity to provide comment. Should you have questions, regarding this matter, please contact the undersigned Board Chair or Board Vice Chair.

Sincerely,
R. Owen Johnson, Jr.,
Board Chair
Verjeana M. Jacobs, Esquire
Vice Chair

to leave the salaries alone. She added that their rewards are beyond monetary ones and noted that some municipalities do not pay their elected officials any salary at all.

Although Councilmember Rodney Roberts said he thought the mayor's increased duties did not warrant twice the salary of other councilmembers, Davis assured Timmers that council would consider her recommendation during the next budget cycle.

City Groups

Davis serves as liaison to the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum Board. Roberts is assigned to the Arts Advisory Board and the Youth Advisory Committee. Councilmember Edward Putens will serve the Advisory Planning Board, Public Safety Advisory Committee and the Community Relations Advisory Board. Councilmember Leta Mach will serve the Advisory Committee on Education and the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee and Councilmember Konrad Herling will be liaison to the Park and Recreation Advisory Board, the Recycling and Environment Advisory Committee and the Greenbelt Access Television Board. These assignments show no change from last year.

COG Groups

The Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments is an independent, non-profit association of 21 local area governments and area members of state legislatures and Congress. Its mission is to provide a forum for members to work together to enhance the region's quality of life. Davis will serve on COG's Board of Directors with Roberts as alternate. Davis is also on COG's Chesapeake Bay Policy Committee with Putens as alternate. Davis serves on COG's ad hoc Green Building Advisory Committee. The Transportation Planning Board will have Roberts as a member with Herling as alternate. Putens is on both the Human Services Policy Committee and the Public Safety Policy Committee. Mach is on the Metropolitan Air Quality Committee and announced she is vice chair of the Maryland group of this body. Herling is Mach's alternate for Air Quality and serves on the Metropolitan Development Policy Committee with Mach as alternate for him. They are spearheading the upcoming "Empty Bowls" charitable fundraiser. There will be an opening reception from 2 to 4 p.m. The exhibit will run through March 15 from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday whenever the room is not reserved.

The unveiling of the new exhibit takes place at the same time as the monthly Artful Afternoon programs. The artists participating in the exhibition are united not only by their love of clay but also by a call to service. Each of them is a contributor to the upcoming "Empty Bowls" project which will raise funds for a local charitable organization.

On Saturday, March 10 Greenbelt Pottery, Inc. and the Greenbelt Community Church will host the third annual Empty Bowls supper benefiting Help By Phone, a nonprofit organization which has helped to provide emergency food and shelter in Prince George's County for nearly 40 years. The event will take place at the church, where members will have prepared a simple repast of soups and bread. Each ticket purchased entitles the diner to choose a ceramic bowl to keep from a wide array of pieces donated by local potters, including those artists featured in the new gallery exhibit.

Most of the artists participating in the exhibition are affiliated with the artist-in-residence program and Greenbelt Recreation Department arts education programs based at the Community Center, where many of the bowls will be produced. Contributors will include Chris Coyle, Gina Mai Denn, Loraine DiPietro, Mary Gawlik, Mark Gitlis, Pam Hagerhorst, Jeri Holloway, Barbara Logan, Karen Morgenstern, studio manager Diana Guillermo and potter Diane McDaniel who initiated Greenbelt's Empty Bowls project in 2004. The group's work spans a broad range of styles and construction techniques, from hand-built and hand-carved wares to pieces thrown on a potter's wheel.

Artists will be on hand at the Artful Afternoon to provide information and sell tickets for Empty Bowls 2007. In the first two years of this event, sponsors raised over $8,500 for Help by Phone. The potters have donated over 200 bowls each year in addition to other wares sold at the event. Artists anticipate contributing over 225 hours of studio time alone to the cause this year. Organization President Gina Mai Denn comments, "The members of Greenbelt Pottery are very excited to sponsor this event for a third year. We enjoy using our art to make a positive impact on the community." With the new exhibit at the Community Center, the city recreation department says it is pleased to honor the generous and industrious artists who are helping their neighbors in creative ways.

Two Artists Display Works at New Deal

There will be an artists' reception on Sunday, February 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the New Deal Café for artists David Ralph and Thomas Wick, whose work will be exhibited throughout the café during February.

A Greenbelter for 12 years, Ralph displays his abstract watercolors of the female form as well as more traditional pieces. He describes his most recent series of watercolor paintings as geometric abstractions where shape, color, value and pattern take on more importance than the reality of the subject. In this series, he says he has attempted to abstract and distill the curves, lines and shapes which make up the female figure to their most elemental and geometric levels and in the process capture the essence of the beauty found in the female figure. Currently he is working on a series involving sport themes.

Ralph has exhibited his work several times in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Art Show, at Montpelier Mansion in Laurel and at Strathmore Hall in Bethesda. A full-time graphic artist for over 17 years, he lives with his two children at Greenbriar Condominiums.

Wick has produced his own creative new style of art in a variety of media that includes acrylic, oil, pastel, chalk and mixed media on canvas. His creative new style shows the influence of Impressionist, Abstract Expressionist and the Hudson River School styles. Wick says his art is an experiment in breaking all the rules in the theme of creativity. His work covers harbor scenes, old boats, landscapes, abstracts and nudes that defy a category, ballerinas, light houses, architecture and many types of drawings.

Wick studied art at the Cleveland Institute and Willoughby Fine Arts Association. His career, 42 years as a consulting design engineer, brought him work at NASA Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt. He has contributed to designs of missile launch systems, space telescopes and combat vehicles, producing thousands of designs for General Electric, Ford, Lockheed and others. Wick lives in Bowie and is a member of the Guild of Bowie Artists.

The café exhibits are co-sponsored by the Friends of New Deal Café Arts and supported by the Prince George's Arts Council and Prince George's County.

current transportation services and begin to plan for future needs because of the changes occurring in Greenbelt West. Herling said, "It would be silly not to take advantage" of such a grant, even without the possible addition of 5,000 more residents. Following discussion council agreed that, with the grant, Greenbelt could institute a model transportation program which would cause a ripple effect throughout the region and might result in greater cooperation between municipalities. Herling moved to adopt the grant proposal as application for a pilot technical assistance grant.

Council also discussed the "Clean Car" bill currently being considered by the General Assembly. Supported by such groups as the Sierra Club, this bill would add Maryland to the list of 11 states that have adopted lower emission standards. The topic formed part of the discussion at the town meeting on January 9 of the Greenbelt chapter of the Chesapeake Climate Action Network (CCAN), which had been attended by Davis and Council member Leta Mach.

All members of council indicated support for the bill. Addressing council, Steve Kane described his pleasure with the high turnout at the January 9 meeting. He described the "Cool Cities" program instituted in Seattle and supported by the Sierra Club. Davis asked McLaughlin to contact the Sierra Club for more information about the program.

Skateboard Park

On a wholly different kind of transportation issue, McLaughlin reported that the informal opening of the skateboard park had been successful. He said that a formal opening will be held when weather permits.

McLaughlin also announced a call for the design for a Greenbelt Earth Day T-shirt, with prizes to be awarded for the winning design.

Reporting a request by the town of Kensington in Montgomery County for support in its request to the county for concurrent zoning authority, McLaughlin suggested that council support this request as a courtesy and for possible return of support at a future time. Council concurred.
